CALIFORNIA MONEY EXHAUSTED DEALERS END LOCAL DAIRY WAR

MILK PRICES TO BE UPPED IN THIS CITY

The milk "price war," which has made bottled milk available to Richmond residents at 7 cents a quart, will end definitely today.

This was the announcement made yesterday by Richmond milk dealers.

Effective this morning, milk will be retailed at 11 cents a quart and 7 cents a pint. For cream, a quarter pint will retail for 13 cents and a half pint will be sold for 25 cents.

This action follows the moves of San Francisco and Oakland milk dealers who have increased their prices following a milk war in those cities.

Milk dealers declared yesterday that the new price is justifiable under present conditions and will give the producers an opportunity to at least meet operating expenses.

It was reported that under the 7 cent scale, producers were daily reporting losses.

New Hair Cut Code Will Set Price At 50c

A new hair cutting code, whereby a price of 65 cents will be charged in certain sections of the eastbay region, and a price of 50 cents will be in effect in Richmond and elsewhere, was announced yesterday by Timothy A. Reardon, state director of industrial relations.

Reardon said the changes were approved by the governing board of the NRA barbers and have been referred to Edwin M. Daugherty, NRA administrator. At a recent hearing, San Francisco region barbers were the only ones to favor the 65 cents price.

The lighter scale will prevail in District No. 1, which includes the counties of San Francisco, Alameda, Marin, San Mateo, Sonoma, Napa, part of Solano and Palo Alto and Mayfield in Santa Clara county.

A shave will cost 25 cents anywhere in the state.

Re-employment Branch Starts At Martinez

MARTINEZ, Oct. 31.—Visiting here today Congressman George Imbach and Ralph Wood of Richmond made arrangements for establishment of a branch office of the national re-employment service at Hoffman's cigar store, Main and Ferry streets, where unemployed men may register. The service is a branch of the federal department of labor.

Morris Hoffman will be in charge of the local bureau and will accept registrations between 1 and 6 p. m. The local bureau is a branch of the main county office at Richmond, from where assignments for such positions as become available will be made.

Under federal regulation a classification or preference list has been established for filling positions. Veterans with dependents are given preference, civilians with dependents follow, then veterans without dependents and civilians without dependents.

Hallowe'en Is "Quiet" In Richmond

Richmond received a "new deal" in Hallowe'en last night, according to a check-up made after midnight with the Richmond police department.

Between 20 or 25 calls were received by officers from irate citizens who demanded that a cop be sent at once to "shag away" predatory gangs of "kids."

Point Richmond was the quietest spot in the city. Only one complaint was received there, police stated.

This was the record "low" for number of calls received on Hallowe'en it is believed.

There was some property damage reported. One window was broken, several mail boxes were torn down and a number of street signs were changed.

Outside of this, police reported, the children generally enjoyed themselves with minor mischief. Just why Richmond had so little Hallowe'en pranks is a matter of some conjecture this morning. Efficient patrolling of streets by local patrolmen was advanced by some as the cause, while another jocular source declared that "the kids must have been working under an NRA Hallowe'en code."

Elks Lodge To Initiate Large Class

Doctors' and dentists' night was held last night by Richmond lodge No. 1251, B. P. O. Elks at their clubrooms with Dr. K. O. Daily in charge. Motion pictures of anti-venom manufacture were shown to the lodge.

REBUILDING OF SCHOOL IS STUDIED

An effort to thresh out differences over plans for strengthening of the Roosevelt junior high school, will be made today when City Superintendent of Schools Walter T. Helms and Architect L. S. Stone go to Sacramento.

Quiet recently plans for the work on the local school were submitted to the state board in charge of plans for improving state schools to make them earthquake proof.

Plans Returned These plans were returned by the state board with a number of changes noted.

It was also pointed out that under the ruling made by Attorney General U. S. Webb, reconstruction of buildings must be of the same quality as construction.

Ruling Protested Local school authorities, it is understood, will protest this ruling on the grounds that it is unfair.

Special efforts are being made to have the plans for Roosevelt school approved as soon as possible. The local high school board is desirous that the work on the building be started in the near future.

To Aid Local Men At a recent board meeting Ira E. Scott, of El Cerrito, moved that special action be taken to enable the board to let the work to local contractors who would employ local men.

At that time the board declared that work should be started sometime this month. However, the action of the state board is delaying progress.

Today Helms and Stone will do their utmost to have plans approved, giving employment to local men.

DEATH WAS ACCIDENT SAYS HOEY

Mrs. J. O. Ford, who was buried yesterday, died of a terrific blow in the back.

This was the information given out last night by District Attorney J. F. Hoey at Martinez, after he had questioned those at the party at the Day ranch, near Martinez Saturday night.

How the accident occurred is not known, but the official has built up a probable case, that satisfies him, takes the mystery out of the case.

Hoey's opinion is based on two conclusions, the statement made by those at the party and the result of the second autopsy that was performed by Doctor W. E. Merithew of Martinez and Dr. C. L. Abbott of Richmond.

Report of Autopsy

The physicians told the district attorney that their autopsy showed that Mrs. Ford died from a blow on the back, that they found several vertebrae fractured at lower end of the spine, and pelvis bone was shattered.

Case Re-constructed

The county official has reconstructed the accident, based on the report of the physicians' abrasions that were on the face and statements made by who were in attendance at the party. The theory that no one worked out is a reasonable one.

Honor Post, of V. F. W., commanded by A. A. Hughes, had charge of the program.

Solon declared that this government is making a mistake in its plans to recognize Russia, and that despite the fact Russia in all of its agreements with other nations declare that it will not promote communist propaganda, this is ignored by the Russia government, the speaker said.

Solon also told of veteran legislation.

The program was featured by several vocal solos given by Pryce Roberts, who was accompanied at the piano by his wife.

OREGON GRID
TEAM PREPARES
FOR UTAH SQUAD

EUGENE, Ore., Oct. 31.—UP—A battered and bruised flock of Webfoots resumed practice here today following their sixth straight victory by defeating U. C. L. A. last Saturday. Chief cripples were Bob Parker, punter and quarter-back, who suffered a wrenched knee, and Mark Temple, half, who suffered a dislocated shoulder, bone, his third injury of the season. They may not see action against Utah here Saturday.

CORVALLIS, Ore., Oct. 31.—UP—Bill Tomscheck, Oregon state right guard, will not play in the Oregon game Armistice Day, but may see action against Fordham, according to Dr. R. L. Bosworth, team physician. Tomscheck fractured two vertebrae in the W. S. C. game last Saturday. His teammates took a light workout today. Stan McEwen replaced Tomscheck and probably will start against Oregon.

PULLMAN, Wash., Oct. 31.—UP—Where to get two halfbacks to replace the injured Christoffersen and Colburn and an end to fill Ron Kelley's shoes was worrying Babe Hollingbery as he resumed practice today. Washington State meets Gonzaga Saturday. Phil Sarboe, quarter, was not badly injured in the Oregon State game and should see action against the Bulldogs.

SEATTLE, Oct. 31.—UP—Out of the tough Stanford game without an injury, eleven Washington Huskies took things easy today while the bench warmers had their day on the scrimmage field. Jimmy Phelan has eleven days to bring his "iron men" to a peak for the California clash at Berkeley.

MINNIE!

NRA CONTROL ATTACKED BY REPUBLICANS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—UP—Republican national committee has broken its long silence to charge President Roosevelt with repudiating campaign pledges.

In a booklet prepared for use by Republican party workers, the national committee asserts that Mr. Roosevelt has broken away from sound money and embraced the rubber dollar; failed to reduce the cost of government 25 percent or to balance the budget; failed to expedite public works; engaged the government in transactions in farm commodities that failed to restore price parity for agriculture; failed to lower the tariff; subsidized exports; taxed food and clothing; left bank deposits tied up for months; urged unsafe banking to bolster NRA; weakened anti-trust laws, and taken the government into the field of private business on a large scale.

In each instance, the Republican committee cites Democratic platform planks or earlier utterances by Mr. Roosevelt which it regards as pledges violated by subsequent action.

"Under the national industrial recovery act," the committee says, "the government has not only invaded the field of private enterprise, but it has taken over the control of every private enterprise, setting up machinery whereby with the authority of the law, it fixes wages, hours of labor, conditions of employment, output and distribution and prices, as well as trade practices. In addition, it sets up a board in which it has the controlling power to manage every private business in the United States through the instrumentality of codes."

This break in the political truce under which Mr. Roosevelt launched his recovery program was viewed in Washington as a significant political development, opening the way for the congressional campaign next year when the country will have its first opportunity to pass judgment by the ballot upon what is being done.

The Republican booklet leads off with a roundup of Mr. Roosevelt's sound money declarations and cites as contrasting actions, the President's alleged sponsorship of the Thomas inflation amendment, the gold anti-hoarding order, abandonment of the gold payment clause in government bonds and contracts, and refusal to stabilize currency internationally.

"He went off on a tangent about a currency based on a 'commodity dollar'," the National committee statement adds. "His message to the London economic conference" it says, "both because of its contents and its impertinence, wrecked the conference."

Administration claims that expenses have been reduced $1,000,000,000 are "wholly fictitious," the committee says. Savings credited to the Army, Navy and postoffice are described as "purely imaginary," describing the new agencies set up, the committee says.

"Instead of this administration reducing the bureaucracy of which Governor Roosevelt complained so often during his presidential campaign, it has vastly increased Federal bureaucracy."

The administration was charged with setting up "a system of tricky bookkeeping whereby it hopes to deceive the public in the belief that the budget has been balanced."

For instance, the NRA cited recently, as an example of gain, an unidentified paper box factory in the north which reports personnel increase from 329 to 472 and payroll from $13,464 to $14,307 per month. That looks fine—until it is divided out. The average employee of this plant received $35.42 a month before the factory went under the Blue Eagle, and $30.31 afterward—an average far below the Blue Eagle requirement under a very large proportion of the employees were part timers. And the expressed objective of the Blue Eagle is not to pay a lot of people part-time starvation wages, but to pay as many as possible living wages. In this case, if the pay of the old employees was not changed, the new employees are averaging only $9.06 a month, presumably therefore, most of the old employees took cuts.

On the other side is a plant which employed 211 persons in June at an average wage of $12.50 and in October employees 469 at an average of $30.07.

One report shows employment of 141 persons on a 48 hour week in June, with a payroll of $6,366; and 163 persons in October on a 40 hour week with the payroll meanwhile dropping to $6,113. The average pay per employee was $45.14 in June; $39.05 in October. In this and other cases where the total payroll dropped, the hourly wage employee has risen somewhat.

George Peck, Agricultural Adjustment Administrator, stepped in. He told Wallace that King's retirement now would mean that the Department was retreating under fire.

Wallace took his advice. But now the Brain Trust is still demanding that King resign.

FRUIT BASKET

The NRA has been called a lot of things, but Commerce Secretary Dan Roper has a designation all of his own for it.

In his soft, mellow South Carolina drawl he was expounding at length at his press conference on the work of the Coast and Geodetic Survey. The reporters flinched impatiently.

Finally, one of them interrupted: "Mr. Secretary, how about the NRA? When are you going to take it over?"

Roper didn't bat an eyelash. "The subject in hand," he observed pleasantly, "is the Coast and Geodetic Survey. One thing at a time. I'll come to the NRA later."

After a while he finished his lecture.

"Now about the NRA," he said, changing to a brisk tone. "I have plenty to do without troubling about that for the present. I can afford to wait a while before receiving that basket of fruit."

WARNING

Certain lawyers and promoters are in for public castigation by Currency Controller J. E. T. Jaty O'Connor. Information is that these men are trying to shake down fancy fees from officials of closed banks seeking government assistance to reopen. These men say they had "inside drags" and that without their participation banks can't get action.

O'Connor says anyone interested in a bank, closed or open, and desirous of advice or assistance has only to ask O'Connor's office to get it. Not only that, but should one of the would-be-fixers—all of whom are known to the Treasury—attempt to appear in the case, his client would be informed to return without him.

What aroused O'Connor to the talking point was the submission to him of confidential information that two New Yorkers had told businessmen in a southern town that for $25,000 they could "fix" it so that closed banks they were interested in would be reopened.

INCREASED LYNCHING

Negro organizations are complaining to President Roosevelt regarding the New Deal for Negroes. Especially since the recent burning of an alleged mental defective on the eastern shore of Maryland, telegrams and letters have been sent to the White House.

The National Association for the Protection of Colored People protests that not merely lynchings but mob violence against Negroes has increased tremendously this year. The Association cites these lynchings:

The Eastern Shore burning was the twenty-first mob murder of a Negro since January of this year. During the same period last year ten had occurred.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

General Hugh Johnson says he has irrefutable proof that he is impartial in the capital-labor issue. Says he: "Both sides are sane."

President Roosevelt's recent announcement of the opening of negotiations with Russia has had a market effect on the sale of Soviet bonds. New York bankers report that demands for the bonds have appreciably improved. Pennsylvania's Senator "Puddler" Jim Davis has a plan for a new American church. As he explains it, the proposed institution combines "the fraternal and the religious under one head." Under Davis' scheme houses of worship would be part club house and part church. Davis was once chief potentate of the Moose.

WILL TIGHTEN REGULATIONS FOR DRIVERS

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 31.—Immediate steps looking toward the tightening of regulations governing the issuance of drivers licenses in California will be taken by the Department of Motor Vehicles.

This announcement of the department's policy was made today by John A. McGilvray, recently-named chief of the departmental division of drivers licenses, who said its intent was to curb motor accidents. The steps to be taken include:

1.—A closer scrutiny of court records of motor violations to eliminate the habitually-careless and negligent driver.

2.—Greater centralization of departmental machinery for giving examinations to prospective new drivers and the issuance of renewed licenses to old drivers.

3.—A "stiffer" examination of prospective drivers both as to their knowledge of driving regulations, their physical qualifications, and driving experience.

4.—Greater use of the department's power to revoke licenses for cause.

5.—More stringent regulations governing the use of motor vehicles by the young and inexperienced and a possible greater use of the law permitting the issuance of restricted licenses.

McGilvray announced that a possible part of the program would be the calling in of a large number of licenses issued prior to 1929 for renewal. This would cut holders of such licenses in the same classification as drivers to whom licenses good for two years were issued after 1929.

The department will require obedience to the law requiring every operator of a motor vehicle to carry his license to drive upon his person and exhibit it at any time an officer of the law requests it.

The assistance of the more than 500 members of the California highway patrol will be drafted in the program.

McGilvray explained that the department feels the importance of the operator's license has been under-emphasized in the past and that it is felt a more careful administration of its issuance and use will result in accident reduction.

Officials to Retire From NRA Board

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—UP—James A. Moffett, former vice president of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey will withdraw tomorrow from the industrial advisory board of the NRA, it was learned tonight.

It was semi-officially emphasized that no disagreement to the NRA and nothing approaching a "shakeup" was the cause of the withdrawals. There were intimations, not immediately confirmable, that Moffett at least would remain actively identified with the recovery movement presumably in connection with the oil advisory board, of which he is a member. No chairman has been appointed as yet for this board.

CONDITION OF SO COMPANY IMPROVING

Standard Oil company of California's earnings statement for the third quarter, made public yesterday, shows a decidedly improved condition as compared with its statement for the first six months of the year. For the third quarter the company earned 35.7 cents a share as compared with 38.9 cents in the 1932 period.

The company's earnings for the first six months were 32 cents as compared with 52.8 cents the same period a year ago.

At the meeting yesterday of the board of directors it was voted to pay a quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share, payable December 15 to stockholders of record November 15.

Income Compared
Operating income for the 1933 period was $9,350,808, as compared with $9,465,139 in the 1932 period. Nonoperating income included $169,695 in dividends and a loss of $240,384 in other income as compared with $133,825 in dividends and $221,761 from other sources in 1932, giving a total net for the 1933 period of $9,280,119 as compared with $9,820,726 a year ago. Gross profit in the 1933 period was $4,869,102, depreciation, depletion and amortization accounting for the $4,411,017 deduction. Gross profit in the 1932 period was $5,471,841.

$4,674,102 Profit
Income tax for the period was estimated at $195,000, while it was $325,000 for the 1932 period, and thus net profit in 1933 was $4,674,102 as compared with $5,096,841 in 1932.

Not profit for the nine months this year was $5,873,516 or 44 cents a share as compared with $12,013,385 for the period in 1932, when 91.7 cents a share was earned. Gross income for the 1933 nine months was $19,280,167 compared with $24,926,519, and net income was $19,023,419 as against $25,869,629 in 1932.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 31.—UP—A trend toward the Americanization of Hollywood is forecast by the action of B. P. Schulberg, noted producer in visiting Europe without a foreign picture star, or being a foreign scenario.

Schulberg told me that Hollywood presently boasts enough talent, both writing and acting, to meet production needs in the next decade.

"Europe's motion picture industry has nothing to offer the American industry and nothing to teach," Schulberg declared. "I believe in acting and writing work in foreign films is equal to our own, directing and producing in America are far ahead."

"Comparing acting talent, of course, means that European actors like their own stars as much as they do American players."

BIG COMEDY STAR GALAXY AT FOX TODAY

Katherine Hepburn, woman of magic and hailed as today's greatest screen actress, will be seen on the Fox screen tomorrow in "Morning Glory," a story of a girl's rise to fame as a star. The play was written by Zoe Akins and is making a decided bid for the best picture of the month. Douglas Fairbanks Jr., Adolphe Menjou, Mary Duncan and C. Aubrey Smith are supporting the star in the film.

Double Bill Today
"Beauty for Sale" light-hearted romance of three Broadway gold diggers with Midge Evans, Una Merkel, Otto Kruger, Alice Brady, and other Metro Goldwyn Mayer stars, is playing on a double bill with the Fox today. "Wild Boys of the Road" a dramatic tale of today's "ragged youngsters" with Frankie Darro and Dorothy Condon in the leading roles, is the added feature.

Just as we like our own as much or better than foreign ones.

"I believe Paramount's recent search for a girl to play Alice in Wonderland pretty conclusively showed that the talent is right in Hollywood. The English-speaking world was diligently searched for the right girl, and at last she was found here. She had been in Hollywood four years.

"It wouldn't surprise me if there were 50 Marie Dresslers here. A thorough search would discover them without a doubt."

Schulberg read reams of stories in Europe but found none better than the average available in the United States. He believes that the importation wave, wherein actors and stories are used chiefly because they are foreign, is on the wane—and rightly so.

Golden Gate Bridge Pier Is Destroyed

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 31.—UP—A delay of about 30 days in construction of the Golden Gate bridge was believed occasioned today when huge swells that followed yesterday's storm swept away the end of the 1100 foot pier at Fort Point and destroyed three units of the first tender section.

The Pacific Bridge Co., contracting firm, will lose an estimated $100,000 from the accident.

No one was hurt as the guide tower, which extends down 100 feet into the bay, gave way and caused the tenders to fall.

NEW YORK INSIDE OUT
By DON O'MALLEY

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Gleaning from the gossipers:

Peggy Joyce appears nightly about town with so much jewelry draped around her neck and limbs that she makes Mae West look like a servant girl. * * * Sam Rosoff, the guy who built much of the subway, has invested a healthy slice of his bank account in a New Jersey distillery, which has been perfecting that "aging" process for liquor.

The distillery will be able to peddle the stuff at less money per case than the import duties and taxes on imported stuff. * * * Joe Bonomo, once a powerful movie and mat draw, is selling candy.

THE traffic cops here in town, will soon be dropping that standard line, "Goin' to a fine lady."

They have been ordered to study world affairs as a means to better conversation. * * * The demands for relief in Harlem have had a sharp decline because of the flood of publicity accorded the recent activities of a Negro, the Central Park Gorilla Man, making other Harlem citizens timid about asking favors.

* * * With a few possible exceptions—which we can't find—every hotel in Manhattan is already selling cocktails at the standard rate of 50 cents per. . . The Federal (the few that are left) have been instructed to "lay off." * * * Duke Ellington's new composition, "Rude Interlude" bids fair to take a place beside his famous "Mood Indigo."

THAT fluffy and flimsy night-gown which Marilyn Miller dons in "As Thousands Cheer" has been put on the market. It's called "As Thousands Cheer." She ought to pull down the shade. * * * A local radio critic holds that Berl Lahr stole his "song song song" from a Swiss bell-ringing act of years ago, but Lahr insists he stumbled upon it accidentally while gazing. * * * Jimmy Walker, who is still reported suffering from home sickness, will be offered the post of Mayor of Larchmont when Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis vacates it. * * * A fat movie contract bringing her back to the screen this winter depends upon the success of Corinne Griffith, ex-movie star, in her role in the road company of Noel Coward's "Destiny For Living."

ROMANCE FOR TWO
by LAURA VILRAY

Jim Tibbett, small-town salesman for a vacuum company, is transferred to the New York office. He marries Mary Dalton just before he leaves. A natural-born blunderer, Jim rushes Mary onto a train bound for Chicago instead of New York. They finally succeed in getting onto the right train, but discover that in the excitement, they have left their luggage on the Chicago train.

CHAPTER V
"MAN-HATTAN Transfer! All out for downtown New York! This train for Thirty-second Street and Seventh Avenue—"

"Oh, Jim! We're almost there!"

"Yes, darling!"

Love's old sweet song. No one has ever compiled the census of the lovers who have mistaken Manhattan Transfer for the Golden Gate. And New York City, viewed in the early morning through the eyes of a couple of newlyweds, appears to have halos floating above the turrets of all its skyscrapers.

Half an hour later, as Jim and Mary stood beneath the portal of the great railway station that glorious morning, they both saw the little halos floating.

"Gosh, what won't we put over in the way of a howling big success in this little burg, Mary!" Jim chuckled.

Mary gurgled assent. "They say competition is ferocious here, Jim. But then, people shouldn't come here unless they can compete. Naturally you can, or they would have sent for you!"

Jim was thinking. "Say, Mary, we can hardly go to a hotel without our luggage. What do you say if we buy a cheap suitcase at one of those shops over there, and then put up at that swell hotel across the street?"

"I think it's a fine idea, Jim."

They were registered at the hotel as soon as they had freshened up from their journey, they hurried down to the street again. On the sidewalk, they stood for several minutes, uncertainly, drenched in the noises of the big city. It was bewildering, yet entrancingly new. Men and women, or divers errands bent, rushed to and fro past them. Newsboys shouted the names of metropolitan dailies. Taxis whirled by. Buses jostled to a stop and jolted away again. Beneath them, like an earthquake, the subway rumbled.

Jim had bought a paper and was glancing through the ads.

"Here's a real estate agent, Mary. Perhaps he could help us find a home. We ought to get settled before I start to work. Let's hop a taxi."

Ten minutes later, Sam Snelder, of the real estate firm of Snelder & Goldstein, was endeavoring to put his feet upon the apartment best suited to their needs.

"Yeah, yeah," he assured them beamingly. "I see the very thing on the roof!"

"That's it! We don't mind climbing before I start to work. Let's hop a taxi."

"Say, Mr. Tibbett, you couldn't beat this little penthouse, not if you commuted to Bermuda! Your own palm trees, right outside your door. You come home, there, nights to your own tropical garden, lie in your own deck chair, play midget golf on your own course, and forget there's anyone but yourselves in the world."

"Sounds great. And the rent?"

"Listen! That penthouse always rented for ten. I'll let it go for seven."

"Seven what?"

"Seven thousand a year."

JIM took Mr. Snelder firmly by the arm, drew him aside so as not to embarrass Mary, and explained that his salary out home had been twenty-five dollars a week, but that he hoped for a fifteen-dollar raise.

"They say your monthly rent shouldn't exceed your weekly salary," he explained. "Besides, I think you ought to save a little at the beginning of your married life."

"Snelder began to laugh, though Jim couldn't see why.

"But young people ought to save," he said. "My wife and me, we saved when we were young. Lemme see what I can do. The place for you two is downtown, in the Village. Cheap rent—Bohemian. I oughtn't to be wasting the time, but I may as well turn you down there."

"A village sounds nice, Jim, dear!"

Snelder laughed still more at that. He was fast on his feet, and he continued to float into gales of merriment as he drove Mary and Jim back downtown until they reached the narrow streets of a neighborhood packed with houses of Greenwich Village.

He led them through a narrow passage to a courtyard, thence to a cubbyhole one flight up at the rear.

"LOOK at that, folks! Ain't it neat? A real little nest! In-a-door bed and in-a-door kitchen!"

He had ever compiled the census of the lovers who have mistaken Manhattan Transfer for the Golden Gate. And New York City, viewed in the early morning through the eyes of a couple of newlyweds, appears to have halos floating above the turrets of all its skyscrapers.

Last year's total tax charge was $3,307,513.23, the difference in the charges for the two years being due to assumption by the state of school charges, reductions in the county tax rate and assessments and lowered levies in various types of districts.

JAP DENIAL WAGING WAR ON SOVIETS

TOKIO, Nov. 1. (Wednesday)—UP—Japan's minister of war, Lieut.-Gen. Sadao Araki, said today:

"Japan has no intention of waging war with the U. S. S. R. I hope that all misunderstanding on this score will be removed completely."

General Araki's assertion followed admission that he may ask the Japanese cabinet to call a far-eastern conference of world powers. The assembly would be at Tokyo. Any country interested in the far east would be asked to send delegates. An agreement touching upon Japan's policy in developing Manchuria would be broached, it was understood.

The proposal had not yet been given the cabinet.

General Araki intimated that Japan was forced in the name of preparedness to build her army to parity with that of Soviet Russia, and her navy to approximately that of the United States fleet.

"The army is now asking for additional expenditures in the budget for the next fiscal year," said the war minister.

In view of the fact that every country in the world is making military preparations, with neighboring countries as the objectives of such preparations, it is natural that from a military and technical point of view, the army of the U. S. S. R. should be the hypothetical objective of Japanese military preparations, and the navy of the United States the hypothetical objective of our navy.

Richmond Moves Forward!

Through good times and bad, Richmond enjoys a kind of progress that is steady and satisfying. Having set out some years ago to develop a harbor and make Richmond an important port, we have kept our eyes on the goal and have moved steadily toward it. Most important of recent steps along this line is the beginning of dredging work for the widening of the local channels. The government quickly recognized the importance of carrying out this work when the facts were presented, and the project is now under way. Channels and turning basins will now be of sufficient width, and Point Potrero will be so generously widened, that the largest deep-sea carriers can navigate Richmond harbor with ease and speed.

Along with this development has gone a rearrangement at Terminal No. 3 on the inner harbor which has made it possible for Richmond to recapture the huge dried fruit tonnage which was temporarily lost, due to the Railroad Commission's ruling on car unloading.

We are now in an excellent position. Channels are to be widened so that the largest shipping companies will make this a port of call, and the tonnage has been secured which will provide a reason for their coming.

So Richmond as a port stands on a sure foundation: She has the tonnage and she has the ship service to all parts of the world.

The Chamber of Commerce is proud of the part it has been able to play in the past and present development of the harbor, and pledges the same kind of support in the future.

The Study of Medicine Takes Years of Training With Success Limited

MANY a young high school graduate of today is saying to himself and his friends, "I want to study medicine." I wonder if they do? Have they taken into consideration what it means to study medicine? Personally I do not think that any boy or girl who has a chance to choose should make up his mind what he wants to do until after he has had a year or two in college and has come in contact with others who want to study law, or engineering or chemistry, or business. When he has seen what their ideas of life are and what their choice of careers may change his own mind.

It is quite a task to decide what you will be most interested in and what will give you the most satisfaction and suit your temperament. What does the study of medicine mean? First a four-year course in college not absolutely necessary but very essential if you want to be thorough. Then come four years in medical school where the study of medicine is hard and not too hard if you are sufficiently interested. Then one or two years of hospital training before you are at all fitted to enter the practice of medicine. This means ten years of study and expense before you have an opportunity to see whether you are fitted mentally or temperamentally to practice your profession.

TEMPERAMENT has much to do with a doctor's success in his profession. Your studies in school are hard. You cannot say, "I want to specialize in only one thing and I'll study only that." You must start at the bottom and study all the anatomy, physiology, and chemistry and biology. You listen to lectures all day and then go into the laboratory and work at experiments and the microscope, studying healthy and diseased tissue so you may recognize them when you see them. Then you must study at night, read, read, read, and attend quiz courses under some instructor so as to correlate what you have heard in the lecture room and have seen in the laboratory.

YOU must have a working knowledge of all branches of medicine and surgery and of all other specialties which must pass periodical examinations on what you have learned from your lectures and studies. It will all be strange to you at first, but if you are interested in medicine, you will not find the study and the work too hard. If you are doing it simply because you said you would or someone told you to, you will find the course of preparation extremely hard and you will probably not make a success of the practice. Then when you do graduate and get your degree of M.D. you will only have started to learn and you have a long hard road ahead.

THE principles and dignity of the profession forbid your advertising yourself except by the excellence of your work, and you probably will not have much work. You will have embarked on the most poorly paid of all the professions. While the overhead expense is considered to be the highest, it is estimated that the average doctor's income is about $2,000 a year. Of course, some physicians do get rich, but they are the exception. If you want to enter a specialty you must take some post-graduate work in that.

WHERE there is a genuine love for the profession, all the dreadful night work and long hours and poor pay will be compensated for in your knowledge of work well done and by the satisfaction in knowing that you are doing some good in the world.

Within Child's Reach

Lights, especially those in the bath room and in the child's bedroom, should have pull or switches which he can reach. Where the switch is inaccessible a light in each room should be made to function with a chain pull to which a long curtain cord with a ring at the end can be attached.

Worth Trying

EVENING GOWN MAKES SUNTAN APPEAR UGLY

By JACQUELINE HUNT

HAVE you tried on your evening gown in anticipation of your first autumn party, to find that its graceful lines and delicate color and texture are incongruous with the remnants of your suntan? Suntan gave life and color and youth to most complexions during the summer, but it is useless to try to hold onto it now that cooler weather is here and the sun goes farther south each day.

The sooner you start the bleaching process, the briefer the faded, yellowish period when your skin is neither here nor there. You will save yourself a lot of embarrassment because you cannot look so well in your new fall clothes with a sallow, in-between sort of skin.

The bleaching treatments begin—as usual for all good treatments—with a thorough cleansing. Use a lot of oil or quick melting cream for this cleansing, since the bleaching treatment is drying to all skins except the very oily. Use several applications of the cleansing preparation, wiping each one away with clean tissues. Rub by rubbing over your skin two or three times with a good skin tonic or with a wash cloth dipped in quite warm water.

When your skin is thoroughly clean, have your hair pulled back and covered with a square of gauze or a small towel. Mix your bleaching mask. To the white of a strictly fresh egg, add a drop at a time the strained juice of one lemon and five drops of tincture of benzoin. Add enough fuller's earth to make a creamy paste. Perhaps I should explain here that fuller's earth is not a trade name, but an inexpensive combination of ingredients used in both the industrial and the beauty world. It has a slightly astringent and bleaching qualities.

Be sure that the egg white is thoroughly mixed with the lemon juice and benzoin before you mix in the fuller's earth, stirring constantly with an old wooden stick to insure smooth blending. When the paste is just thick enough to spread evenly smooth it over the skin and let it remain there until thoroughly dry.

Then remove the paste by wetting a wash cloth in cool water and holding it over the mask. Repeat the applications of cool water until most of the paste has been sponged away, then wash the remaining traces by wiping the cloth over the skin.

Now apply a liberal amount of softening cream, massaging it very lightly into the skin to avoid any irritation, as the skin may feel a little tender after the bleaching treatment. The cream will offset any drying effect that may be produced by mixing together so many astringent and bleaching ingredients. Be sure to alternate this treatment with the hot-oil facial that I described for you in yesterday's column. If you do, the bleaching will not harm your skin or leave it dry and harsh.

Tomorrow—Fall treatment for the hair.

Did You Know?

Cut flowers will keep longer in water which has been slightly salted.

Equal parts of olive oil and warm strong coffee make a good polish for mahogany.

Left-over biscuits and rolls can be freshened by placing in a paper bag, sprinkling the bag with water and warming in the oven.

Wilted vegetables revive more quickly if a little vinegar is added to the water in which they are soaked.

When ironing linens, cover a piece of beeswax with flannel and rub over the surface of the iron. Linens ironed with an iron treated in this manner will have a fine gloss.

If your milkman fails to arrive with cream in time for breakfast, whip an egg very light place a little in each coffee cup. In the coffee and then add milk, and you will not miss the cream.

Fire resulting from cigarette stubs tossed from windows to the awnings below will be minimized if a recently perfected type of awning cloth comes into general use. Woven with an asbestos base, this cloth is non-inflammable but it retains all the virtues of standard awning material, including durability, fastness of color, water tightness, etc.

New York—This season clothes look so dreary. The extremes are already passing. Notice how sleeves are quieting down? How lines are straightening out? Take this coat, for instance—how different it really looks from the coats of yesterday! Not all coats are belted. In fact, it's a fifty-fifty proposition. Sporty coats are liable to be, especially when they are without fur.

Varied Coat Styles
The two leading coat silhouettes are the belted and the wrap.

Coat lengths vary according to the purpose of the coat, and its fabric, which is, of course, selected with its purpose in view. Women naturally like a coat that covers them all up. It's the ideal coat for those who have to go out in all kinds of weather. Many of the swankiest coats end somewhere near the knee section and show the dress beneath.

New Ensembles
The blanket rule in ensembles is that, if the dress section happens to be a skirt and blouse, the effect when worn without the coat is that of a dress rather than a shirtwaist and skirt. There are the usual exceptions, and generally they are to be found in tunic and skirt combinations. Tunes are new and chic.

They reappear not only in some afternoon dresses, but also as separate garments to wear with skirts. Strong backing is given the tunic of formal fabric, whether satin or lame, for evening afternoon wear; this is a style that is entirely compatible with the long jacket suits with which these times will be worn. Daytime combinations include black wool velvets for a coat having a yellow-green sleeve, or black satin dresses with lavender.

A velvet evening frock with a long sleeved jacket that buttons down the back is among the newer styles in formal wear for young women. Note that but for a flower on the shoulder, simplicity is featured in this costume.

A Bank Clerk Makes Good . . . Oil Baron, Sir Henri Deterding

FORTY YEARS ago Henri Wilhelm Augustus Deterding left a minor clerkship in a Batavia, Java, bank to become associated with the Royal Dutch Company, of which H. B. A. Kessler was director. Today, this short, swarthy-faced Dutchman, knighted by the British government in 1921, is known as the "Napoleon" of the oil world.

When as a young clerk he balanced his books for the last time in that Java bank, Henri Deterding knew that the petroleum field was dominated by the Rockefeller-controlled Standard Oil Company. He studied the methods of the American concern, and when Kessler died in 1900 and he was made managing director of his company, Henri Deterding was ready to fight.

This fight opened in China, where the Standard Oil Company had distributed, gratis, thousands of "Mei Foo" (good luck) lamps, with a view to stimulating oil sales. Deterding countered by offering cheaper petrol. The passive Chinese pondered over the situation awhile, and then thousands of the Rockefeller lamps were burning Deterding oil.

Encouraged by his victory, the young Dutchman in 1903 formed an alliance with the Rothschilds in Paris and with Sir Marcus Samuel, head of the Shell Company, which owned oil interests in Russia. He believed always that the nation which controls the oil supply will rule the world. With his new financial support, Deterding began his fight for the oil world. Land was bought and some leased in Egypt, Trinidad, Mexico, and even the United States.

In 1920, the Royal Dutch Petroleum Company had resources of approximately $175,000,000. And so today Sir Henri Deterding, the former bank clerk, is a power and his oil interests spread throughout the world, vie with those of the Rockefellers for supremacy in the field. He is considered one of the richest men in the world, but still spends many hours daily in his London office guiding the destiny of the business which was once only a dream.

AT 67, Deterding has not much to discover about oil operations. He has been for several decades the particular "bête noir" of the Standard Oil interests, and in looking for his own "bête noir" turns his eyes toward Russia.

Admittedly an enemy of the Soviet regime, he has had a long-standing feud with the Bolsheviks over Shell and Royal Dutch properties confiscated after the revolution. After a series of negotiations with Moscow, he apparently resigned himself to being a Soviet opponent.

Soviet wells producing oil in Baku and Batoum and selling at cut prices all over the world continue to be among his chief enemies. Following Russian campaigns against him, his chief diversion, The Communists of Amsterdam (where he was born in 1866) have sworn to get him dead or alive, and after the trial of the right professors and engineers accused of attempting to wreck Stalin's Five Year Plan in November, 1930, it was proposed to erect a gallows on which to hang Sir Henri's effigy. He was accused of complicity at the trial.

It was earlier in 1930 that Deterding was mentioned in connection with a fantastic plot to sever the Russian states by means of inciting revolt, after which the oil and mineral magnates were to march in and take concessions.

MODES AND MANNERS

QUESTION: "When going to one's table in a restaurant, does the woman go first or the man?"

ANSWER: The woman follows the head-waiter or waiter to the table. The man drops back. The woman is always seated before the man. If the waiter doesn't pull out her chair, her escort should. On entering a restaurant, a couple should pause in the doorway and wait to be no- ticed by the head waiter. They should allow him, or some waiter appointed by him, to find them a suitable table.

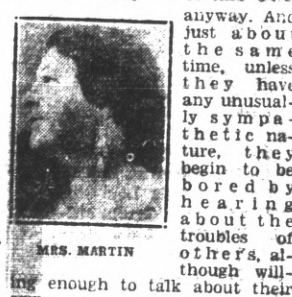

QUESTION: "What should a girl do if a friend drops around unexpectedly, and she has an appointment?"

ANSWER: She should tell him at once, before he has the chance to make himself comfortable for the evening. Otherwise, as time goes on, she will find it increasingly hard to break the news. And if she is nervous and stammers the least bit, the caller is likely to doubt the "date" and think she is just trying to get rid of him.

LAUGHTER WILL HELP TO EASE YOUR PROBLEMS

By MARIAN MARY MARTIN

ANYONE who has reached even so great an age as 40 begins to realize that his other fellows' troubles are not troubles really—just life's ups and downs.

anyway. And just about the same time, unless they have any unusually sympathetic nature, they are bored by hearing about the troubles of others, although they will listen enough to talk about their own.

I KNOW a man who is always saying, "Why, that's no problem"—at least, that is his usual attitude when on other people's problems—while he himself gets all in a tatter over trifles, although capable and philosophical enough over his own real problems.

PERHAPS he is running true to form. Don't we all react favorably at the big moments and behave with great credit in a crisis, while going off the handle completely over some petty annoyance?

AS MARRIED life, and all other methods of living, incidentally, is largely made up of petty annoyances, it would most certainly make for greater peace and harmony in the home if we learned a little self-control over trifles. Exasperation does not warrant a big dramatic spectacle. Emotional baths are decidedly bad business all around. They undermine you for real problems.

AND everyone has problems. They may seem tiny to others, but they are tremendous to us, largely because no one can really understand them as we do. That is why an outsider is always so pat about telling us what to do. They see only what they are allowed to see, and are entirely ignorant of the ramifications that may make even a meek little mountainous problem.

EVERYTHING would be easily settled and problems easily disposed of in this world, were it not for the human element. Personalities cannot be discounted. They involve the plot more than anything.

PLANS for curtailing living expenses, for instance, by merging families can rarely be carried out, even when it is obviously to everyone's advantage, just because of the human element. "Why, it's perfectly simple," says some well-meaning friend. "Why don't you and John give up housekeeping and go to live in your mother's big house, or in John's mother's big, comfortable home?"

WHY indeed? Because no one wants to turn a peaceful homestead into a battle ground, or make enemies for life of women who are friendly when apart. And it's not only the woman who creates the disturbance either. Just try mixing brother and husband, or even a father, when their relationship is complicated by family ties. Try restoring something like sound common sense between partners who have learned either to mistrust each other's judgment, or who have, in some way, come acropper.

TRY throwing together, for economy, two sisters who have formed a habit of quarreling. The result in all these instances is the same. One would rather pay through the nose than put up with any such solutions of what remains a problem, no matter how trivial it may seem to outsiders.

ONLOOKERS may see most of the same, but they usually are in ignorance of the motive for the various plays made. Laugh off your own problems if you can, but don't be angry about the other fellow's. Try to settle them out of hand because the chances are you have only created new and greater complications.

Americans Are Fussy About Eggs

According to statistics, the average American eats 223 dozen eggs annually. The country is fussy about its eggs, too. In New York, the demand is for white eggs; in and around Boston, the natives won't eat anything but brown ones. Now, we hear that eggs are being trade-marked. America's passion for branded goods has finally invaded the barnyard. Eggs are being rubber-stamped with the name of a certain poultry farm to indicate that the hen's diet has been strictly up to scratch.

Tasty Dishes for Today

USE SOUR MILK FOR FLAVORING

By JUDITH WILSON

DO NOT be perturbed if the precious contents of your cream or milk bottle sour or turn to clabber. While one commonly thinks that "sour" denotes spoilage, quite the contrary is true where milk is concerned. Some of the finest cooking of the Continent depends on sour milk or cream for delicate and elusive flavors. Sour milk or cream is also as healthful as the sweet product right out of its can.

If you happen to need sour milk for a certain recipe and do not have any on hand you can prepare your own by adding one tablespoon of sharp white vinegar to one-cup of fresh milk or a one-half cup evaporated milk and one-half cup water. Butter, milk or artificially soured cream can also be obtained from milk dealers who handle the fresh product.

Salad Dressings

Sour milk or cream makes delicious and easy salad dressings and sauces for vegetables. They give a specially fine flavor and texture to certain baked foods. Made into cottage or "pot" cheese, its uses in all kinds of food combinations is unlimited.

Cheese Croquettes

Cheese croquettes make a delightful main dish for luncheon or supper. Prepare a thick white sauce from one tablespoon of butter, two tablespoons flour and one-half cup milk. Add one-fourth teaspoon salt and pepper to season, then stir in two cups of mashed potatoes, two cups of cottage cheese and one tablespoon of finely chopped onion. Chill the mixture and form into small balls, roll in fine bread crumbs, then dip into one egg slightly beaten and diluted with one tablespoon water. Roll again in the crumbs and fry in deep fat. Drain and serve while very hot with a spicy, hot tomato sauce.

A Russian Tip

Chopped raw vegetables with sour cream is a Russian dish that is a life-saver on a hot day. Cut cucumbers, green onions, radishes and skinned tomatoes into cubes and chill thoroughly. Beat very cold, soured cream with a fork until smooth and fluffy and season with paprika and a little lemon juice and salt. Arrange the chopped vegetables in salad bowls and cover them with sour cream. Use a sprig of watercress or a wedge of red tomato stuck into the snowy surface as a garnish. If you can get genuine Russian pumpernickel, serve it with sweet butter with this dish.

Home-Making

By ALINE STERN

Have you seen the new milk bottles with a crack in the neck? You can pour off the cream without shaking. There is a deep indentation in the side of the bottle, just below the place where the cream stops. When the bottle is tilted with the indentation due up, the indentation forms a vacuum in the neck of the bottle and the cream points first leaving the skimmed milk.

An electric percolator of glass with chromium handle and chromium base is a nice gift for the bride about to take up housekeeping. The one seen has an eight-cup capacity, but can be used to make two or three cups of delicious coffee if one needs less. The chromium handle stays cool. This glass percolator serves another purpose also—as an attractive container for ice cream. Take out the insert and drop in ice cubes, that's all.

You and Your Child

OVERPRAISE IS BAD FOR CHILD

By JANE HERBERT GOWARD

TWO mothers believe in praising their children. Yet the child of one is retiring and the child of the other is forward.

Some will say that it is the children; that each responds differently to praise. But it really is the mothers who are different. Both have read the same book or attended the same lecture wherein the theory was expounded that children need praise to give them a sense of security, self-confidence and poise; and both mothers were impressed. They went home and tried it, and in each case the child responded as had been promised. The parents noticed that praise flattered the children's vanity and made it easy to get cooperation. But one mother was a clever device. She said to her child, "If you do this for me, I will give you a reward." The other mother used it sparingly and for a purpose.

Purpose of Praise

The object of this story is to show that praise can be a good thing if not carried too far. The parent must be the final judge in deciding when praise is necessary. Obviously, the time to praise is when the child is deserving. Yet every time he behaves becomingly he is not deserving of praise, and for an equally obvious reason.

We praise a child in the first place, to show approval of an action. It is as if we said "That's right." If he repeats the action, it is as much because it flatters him to do it again as because it pleases us.

Parents, evidently, need to be put "wbe" to the fact that a child does not go out of his way to please us unless he gets some pleasure out of the doing too. Their job merely is to praise, to show the child what is acceptable to them in the behavior line. "If they repeat the praise every time the child repeats a given act, they are making him dependent upon praise. He will get an idea eventually that he can't make mistakes. Isn't everything he does "lovely" or "wonderful"?

Becoming Modesty

Parents who praise indiscriminately give their children an opportunity to learn to judge their own actions. Such training will give a child a sense of values. He will know his faults. He will be aware of his good points without imagining himself to be perfect. He will have poise but won't push himself unnecessarily. He will be considerate of others' thoughts and feelings.

School Bus Conference Is Planned

Richmond Union high school is the problem faced by the high school board of education.

Aid Asked

Petitions have been presented by residents of the above-named areas, who have demanded that something be done at once by the board.

It was suggested at a recent session of the high school board that present busses owned and operated by the schools be used as "feeder" lines and that the railway company be employed to take the children to school.

Plan Is Told

Under the plan, children living several blocks or more away from San Pablo avenue in El Cerrito or Mira Vista, would be transported by school busses to the avenue where they would transfer to Eastbay Street Railway busses to be brought to the high school.

Such a plan, school board members declared, would solve the problem and would be economical.

It is believed that the conference between Helms and St. Sure will bring some understanding that will put the plan into effect in the very near future.

DEATH WAS ACCIDENT SAYS HOEY

and he has accepted it as the facts surrounding the accident.

What Facts Show

"Mrs. Ford was apparently standing in front of the car, when it suddenly started. The bumper knocked her forward, face downward, and as the car passed over her, the crank axle struck her in the back," said Hoey, "causing the fatal injuries, that the doctors reported as the result of the autopsy."

"The flesh on both of the knees was broken, bearing out the supposition, that the deceased was thrown forward. This would also explain the abrasions on the face, and the bruise on the breast."

"There is nothing to show," said Hoey that any of the wheels of the auto passed over the woman's body."

Where Body Was Found
"When the search was made for Mrs. Ford, after she had left the Day home, the body was found underneath the auto by Mrs. Bolmer, one of the members of the party," said Hoey. "She used her flashlight and saw a hand protruding from the side of the car. The body was parallel with the car."

Will File Reports

The district attorney will place on file in his office complete reports of the autopsy physicians, and stenographic of those at the party, and the officers from the sheriff's office who worked on the case.

When the inquest is held by Coroner Aubrey Wilson, undoubtedly a verdict of accidental death will be returned.

The funeral of the deceased was held yesterday afternoon, and was largely attended.

Japanese Ship Launching Fails

Tugs were ordered to complete the launching Wednesday.

State Lacks Funds; Will Pay In Scrip

Riley reported.
"This sum is far in excess of the amount available in funds within control of the governor."

The general fund had borrowed $10,000,000 from special funds, of which $5,000,000 came from the highway funds, Riley said. An additional two or three million dollars will be borrowed in December he said. Repayments will start in January, out of second quarter returns from the sales tax.

"The state will continue the school apportionments to counties that are met by the sales tax," Riley's statement said. "Payment of university claims, and interest and redemption of bonds will be met in full. All other charges against the general fund will be paid by registered warrants that draw interest at the rate of five percent per annum."

"Registered warrants will be called not later than August of next year. The total amount of warrants required to be registered during that period of time will approximate $20,000,000."

Governor Ralph blamed failure of the legislature to provide funds to meet authorized expenditures of the budget as cause of the warrant action. He said it would be inadvisable to borrow additional funds from the state highway department because it would force curtailment of the widespread highway program.

CREEL URGING SETTLEMENT OF FERRY DISPUTE

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 31.—UP—George Creel, NRA district director, today urged both sides to do their utmost to prevent a threatened strike of auto ferry employees.

Creel implied at a conference that the San Francisco Regional Labor board, of which he is chairman, would take a hand in the matter if the strike was called.
The crisis was precipitated when E. H. Maggard, president of the Southern Pacific-Golden Gate Ferries, Ltd., was notified by the employees' union that an agreement under which a 10 percent pay reduction has been in force, will not be continued. The agreement expired tonight.

Union officials said Maggard had let it be known that, also, he would let the Richmond, Vallejo, and Alameda will be discontinued if the firm is forced to pay full salary rates.

The 10 percent wage reduction was accepted by the unions two years ago. They cited the rising commodity market, the approaching loss of many jobs through bridge construction and the "fortunate" financial position of the ferry firm, in demanding that full pay be resumed.
